Chairperson's Message

The Community Initiatives Fund (CIF) was created by the Government of Saskatchewan to distribute a portion of casino profits to benefit Saskatchewan's people and communities. Each year, the CIF receives 25% of net profits less two million dollars, from the Regina and Moose Jaw casinos through the Saskatchewan Gaming Corporation. The CIF is managed and administered by a government-appointed Board of Trustees that consists of eight members who have a long history of volunteering their time and efforts to benefit Saskatchewan's people.

Since 1996, the Community Initiatives Fund has supported many different community initiatives including: programs to assist vulnerable children, youth and families and problem gambling prevention and treatment. In addition, the CIF provided funding to five regional exhibition associations and hospital foundations in Regina and Saskatoon. In 2003/04 the CIF Board launched four new centennial legacy initiatives: the in motion program; the Aboriginal Participation in Sport, Culture and Recreation; centennial capital support and centennial programming initiatives. The management of these programs was a focus for the CIF Board in 2004/05.

The CIF Board was also pleased to present two new Centennial programs in 2004/05. These new programs, the Centennial Homecoming Program and the Centennial Heritage Commemoration Program complement the other Centennial programs that were introduced the previous year.

During the past year, the Board of Trustees managed to maintain all current program commitments even though the revenue to the CIF did not reach anticipated levels.

I would like to thank all of the volunteers who serve on review committees for the various components of the CIF. I would also like to recognize our program delivery partners who coordinate these committees and do so much to ensure the success of these programs. These partners are Sask Sport Inc., SaskCulture, Saskatchewan Parks and Recreation Association, the Northern Recreation Coordinating Committee (NRCC), Tourism Saskatchewan, the Saskatchewan Arts Board and the Saskatchewan History and Folklore Society.

I would also like to extend my sincerest thank you to the individuals who continue to volunteer their services on the Board of Trustees. The work required to get through the large volume of grant applications per deadline was often a daunting task, but the knowledge, expertise and time commitment provided by the volunteers and delivery partners is very much appreciated.

CIF in Action

The CIF supports programs in communities throughout Saskatchewan. Volunteer and community involvement is important in the design and delivery of all CIF programs. The following are examples of how CIF funding has made a difference:

Theatre in Two Languages
The CIF contributed $20,000 towards the "Theatre in Two Languages" project through the Celebrating Community Centennial Grant Program. This program provides grants to community projects that can build legacies of understanding between diverse communities. Youth from North Battleford and the surrounding areas worked with a First Nations playwright and a Cree storyteller to develop two radio plays, one performed in Cree and the other in English.

Under the guidance of their mentors, students of Sakewew High School researched the history of the people of the North Battleford area. Special interest was given to the years surrounding Saskatchewan becoming a province—1900-1910—and to the history of First Nations people. The play was written collaboratively. This project, funded by the CIF, was called "Celebrating Saskatchewan's Centennial by the Creation and Performance of Theatre in Two Languages—Cree and English."

Sakewew High School accepts high-risk students and young offenders from the Drumming Hill Youth Centre. Most of the youth have little or no knowledge of the culture, language, heritage and value system of the Plains people.

This program encouraged the creation of understanding among diverse people in the community through a meaningful and shared experience. The youth, mentors and audiences were all involved together in the storytelling of their area's history and in describing what the province's Centennial meant to them.

The play premiered at Sakewew High School, toured two community halls in North Battleford and four neighboring reserves. Rewriting the play was a necessary part of the students' learning process, as well as learning Cree and English language skills. After the plays became published, they later aired in Cree on northern radio stations and in English on southern radio stations.

Calling Black Lake
The CIF contributed $20,000 towards the "Calling Black Lake" project through the Celebrating Community Centennial Grant Program. The project was a collaborative program to provide quality arts education to high needs children and youth. Those who took part were: high school students of Father Porte Memorial Dene School in Black Lake; participants of the MacKenzie Art Gallery Urban Outreach Program for Inner-city and Aboriginal Schools; and Campbell Collegiate in Regina.

This long distance educational program began as a component of the MacKenzie Art Gallery's Urban Outreach Program for Inner City and Aboriginal Schools. The support of the CIF's Celebrating Community Centennial Grant Program provided several programming opportunities.

Using fifty disposable cameras, students exchanged photographs and pieces of mail-art through the postal system. Workshops were provided in mixed media, beadwork and quillwork. The students of Campbell Collegiate worked on visual art responses for the exhibition.

Two artists-in-residence made on-site visits to Black Lake and assisted students in the production of an hour-long video on the subject of drug and alcohol abuse on a dry reserve. By using traditional art forms, artists from the community taught students during a workshop at the school.

Cultural and geographical boundaries were bridged, and a documentary of the project, including the visual art responses, was made for the opening exhibition in Black Lake. Also included for the exhibition were photo documentation and a catalogue.

Connecting Aboriginal Adoptees to their Culture

The CIF contributed $4,089 towards the "Connecting Aboriginal Adoptees to their Culture" through the Aboriginal Arts and Culture Leadership Grant Program. This program provides grants to develop Aboriginal arts and culture leadership at the individual, group and community levels. Métis and First Nation adoptees who have been adopted by non-Aboriginal families, spent time in foster care or in residential schools, often grew up knowing nothing or little of their cultural roots. The program "Connecting Aboriginal Adoptees to their Culture" allowed these individuals to reconnect with their cultural roots through a variety of art genres. Thus, bridges were created between the adoption community and the Aboriginal community.

Two senior Aboriginal cultural leaders—one a writer and storyteller and the other a drummer, singer and dancer—passed on their knowledge in the literary and performing arts. This gave participants an awareness of their own culture through traditional singing, drumming, drum making, dance and expressive writing.

The program also brought together Native and non-Native staff and developed artistic expression in a typically non-artistic organization. Another positive spin-off was that youth and Elders were able to partner together.

Through this program, participants had the opportunity to listen to the stories of Aboriginal leaders, hear their music, dance with them and learn about their birth culture.

This was an important factor for establishing a link with their community and their history.

Moose Jaw First in motion School Division in Saskatchewan

The CIF contributed $9,000 towards the Moose Jaw School Division through the in motion grant program. This program provides funding to assist in identifying strategies that will increase the level of physical activity in the community. By adding physical activities into their school day, students are healthier, happier and better at learning. The benefits of physical activity convinced the Moose Jaw Public School Division to assist all eight elementary schools in the city to be declared in motion schools.

The schools are committed to working towards 30 minutes a day of physical activity for their students. Each school has its own activator who takes information to the school and helps the staff maintain the in motion program. The teachers can choose whatever physical activity they wish. One school showed an in motion video and one held a dance. Along with community walks, other schools started presentations on the in motion program.

During the school day, students and teachers can be found participating in a number of in motion activities, including: walking, dancing, playing games, core strengthening and aerobics. Also, many students and teachers get in motion outside of school times by doing outdoor laps, visiting the gym or going for walks.

Teachers have noticed mental health benefits for their students who get in motion. After a reduction in stress and gain in a sense of self-growth, the students feel better about themselves.

Aboriginal Hip Hop Competition
The CIF contributed $4,350 towards the Aboriginal Hip Hop Competition through the Community Grants component. This program supports community programs and services targeted toward vulnerable children, youth and families. Using CIF funding, Regina rocked with 250-300 people enjoying the Saskatchewan Cultural Exchange Society's Aboriginal Youth Hip Hop Competition. On the first Thursday of every month, approximately 30 dancers had the opportunity to showcase their talents in hip-hop, rap and break-dancing before a packed house of their peers.

The participants ranged in age from 7-22 and included an equal number of both genders dancing on stage. Many children and youth were driven into Regina from reserves in order to take part. The performers often spent as much as four hours a day practicing their own moves. Some participants used the dance competition as an opportunity to design background music for themselves or others.

The Saskatchewan Cultural Exchange Society partnered with Regina Youth Justice Forum whose members ensured that no gang colors were worn to the dance. They also provided safe rides home after the performance for those young people who needed them.

The Aboriginal Youth Hip Hop Competition allowed at-risk aboriginal and inner city youth to showcase their talents in front of encouraging audiences by working in a professional atmosphere.

Construction of an Eco-Centre
The CIF contributed $23,750 towards the construction of the Eco-Centre project through the Centennial Facilities grant program. This program provides grants to assist with the renovation or construction of sport, culture, recreation and heritage facilities in the community. The town of Craik, with a futuristic eye to conservation, developed the Craik Sustainable Living Project. The town had come up with an idea to establish an eco-village by providing free land to anyone serious about building energy-efficient houses. 127 acres were set aside. This offer could be taken advantage of by prospective builders who first came up with both an energy-efficient house plan and a business plan proving that they could make at least fifty per cent of their living off the land.

The Eco-Centre was built as a demonstration building by the town to prove that they were serious about the eco-village. The Eco-Centre houses a restaurant, two meeting rooms and a pro golf shop.

The facility has more energy efficient systems than any other building in Canada. Most of the building materials were recycled, such as the timbers and the bricks for the oven. Straw bales were used for insulating walls which are 14 inches thick and are cemented inside and outside. Recycled timber was also used in making the furniture. Passive solar heat systems were added to provide energy and a system to collect rainwater was installed. The Eco-Centre is the only commercial building in Saskatchewan that does not add chlorine to its water.

The Federation of Canadian Municipalities recently presented fourteen CH2M Hill National Awards for sustainability projects. The Eco-Centre was one of two recipients in Saskatchewan to receive this prestigious award. Dr. Lynn Oliphant has also received an award through the Royal Canadian Geographic Society for assisting the Craik community with this project.

A high level of support and volunteerism during the entire project increased community awareness and a sense of project ownership. More than a dozen jobs were created during the construction phase and now there are fourteen jobs at the Eco-Centre with several more part-time positions opening in the summer.

Urban Aboriginal Leadership Program

The Community Initiatives Fund contributed $35,000 to the City of Prince Albert for the Urban Aboriginal Leadership Program. This program was implemented to develop and implement quality city-wide leadership and training initiatives for urban Aboriginal sport, culture and recreation practitioners and volunteers through the assistance of a full-time person working in this sector. Thanks to funding through CIF, the City of Prince Albert was able to employ a Recreation Coordinator who worked with non-profit agencies to assist them in the delivery of their programs to meet the needs of the community. A few of the many organizations he worked with include: various schools in Prince Albert, Aboriginal Headstart Preschool, Children's Haven, Aboriginal Healing Project and Waskegun Youth Development Centre.

A Playground Program was also overseen by the Coordinator for students ages 5-12. Sport clinics took place during the summer in several locations and allowed the children to be introduced to different types of sports, such as archery and soccer. After school programs were implemented and targeted children from the schools' Wellness Programs.

Positively Parenting!
The CIF contributed $23,236 towards Positively Parenting! through the Community Grants component of the Community Initiatives Fund. The Positively Parenting! Education & Support Program was a community-based parenting project offered throughout the Prairie Northwest Health District. By offering an inclusive and education-based program, it serves families on Social Assistance, families with children or youth in conflict with the law, and families who had children enrolled in the public school system.

Positively Parenting! worked closely with the schools to provide practical curriculums for parents. Classes were kept short in length and an informal atmosphere allowed people to feel comfortable about sharing. Parents were also given access to books and audio/visual resources. Positively Parenting! included a class called 1, 2, 3, 4 Parents! that spans six sessions. The class teaches parents the different stages of child development for ages one to four, and provides effective ideas to discipline and encourage young children. Active Parenting Today helped parents with children 5-12 years old to learn skills for building courage, self-esteem, cooperation and responsibility. During the six sessions of Families in Action, communication between teens and their parents was facilitated while exploring difficult topics such as violence, drugs and alcohol.

Centennial Murals
The CIF contributed $2,000 to the "Centennial Mural Project – Building Communities Together Project" in Gull Lake through the Centennial Heritage Commemoration grant program. This program was implemented to increase public awareness and appreciation of Saskatchewan's heritage through the creation of a permanent public display or a project that has an ongoing public use. Other communities included in the project were Carmichael, Webb, Antelope and Tompkins.

The mural was painted in the lobby of the Gull Lake and District Recreational Complex, setting it right in the heart of the community. A local artist, hired from the community, directed the efforts of volunteer painters who represented all age groups from children to seniors.

The mural's theme represented the various area industries and local landmarks, which includes farming, oil and a buffalo jump. Historical emphasis was placed on the area pioneers and dinosaurs, and cultural emphasis on the settlement of Hutterites.

Thanks to the CIF grant, the mural will provide a lasting legacy reflecting the character of the people of Saskatchewan to be enjoyed by future generations.

New Library/Art Gallery for Nipawin
The CIF contributed $100,000 towards the construction of a new library and art gallery in Nipawin through the Centennial Facilities grant program. The grant helped fund a community-driven plan to build a new Nipawin School Division K-3 school that included an art gallery for the Nipawin Art Club and space for school library resources. Integration of the town's library and art gallery created a truly community school embracing the new School Plus philosophy.

Both the Town of Nipawin and the School Division felt that sharing library resources within a new school made sense. Partners included in the overall planning of the Library and Art Gallery were: Wapiti Regional Library, Wapiti Community Computer Access Program, the Local Library Board and the Nipawin Art Club.

The new Library/Art Gallery benefits the community in several ways. Its location in a school within Central Park allows for an easily-accessible, central site with lots of parking. Resources, personnel and equipment are shared, resulting in a larger collection of available resources for the students.

The Nipawin Art Club showcases not only works by its members, but is involved in the Organization of Saskatchewan Art Council shows. The elementary and high school also benefits from the space given to the gallery when the students' artwork is displayed.

Community Initiatives Fund

Notes to Financial Statements
March 31, 2005

1. Nature of operations:

The Community Initiatives Fund (the "Fund"), previously known as the Associated Entities Fund, was established on August 23, 1996 by The Saskatchewan Gaming Corporation Act. It is managed by a Board of Trustees consisting of eight people appointed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council. The Board of Trustees is responsible for managing and operating the Fund.

Pursuant to The Saskatchewan Gaming Corporation Act, and other agreements, the Government of Saskatchewan receives, into the General Revenue Fund, certain gaming revenues. The Minister of Finance transfers a portion of these gaming revenues to the Fund. As directed by the Department of Culture, Youth and Recreation the Trustees of the Fund grant these revenues to persons, organizations or associations in Saskatchewan for purposes prescribed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council upon application to the Board of Trustees.

The Fund has an agreement with Sask Sport Inc. to provide administrative services to the Fund. In 2005 Sask Sport Inc. was paid $230,000 (2004 - $150,000) for these services.

2. Significant accounting policies:

These financial statements are prepared in accordance with Canadian generally accepted accounting principles.

Grant expense:

Grants are recognized when a completed grant application is received from an eligible organization and approved by the Board of Trustees.

Grant returns:

Grants returns are recognized when a completed follow up report is received indicating funds were not fully utilized and approval is obtained from the Board of Trustees.

Use of estimates:

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with Canadian generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenue and expenses during the period. Actual results could differ from those estimates. Differences are reflected in current earnings when identified.

Revenue Recognition:

Revenues are recognized in accordance with accounting principles applicable to non-profit organizations. Transfers from the General Revenue Fund are recognized when received or receivable. Interest revenue is recognized when earned.
